

How much does it cost to convert household electrical cables to fiber optic cables

Article Overview

Converting a home to fiber optic wiring typically costs between $1,500 and $7,000, depending on cable length, installation complexity, and equipment needs.

Overview of Costs

The total cost of replacing household electrical cables with fiber optic cables depends on several factors:

- Installation Type: Indoor-only runs, aerial (pole-mounted), or underground (trench) installations affect labor and materials costs .
- Cable Length and Type: Fiber optic cables range from $1 to $6 per linear foot, with single-mode fiber generally cheaper than multimode fiber . Higher strand counts or armored cables increase costs.
- Labor and Routing Complexity: Labor rates vary by region, typically $75-$180 per hour, and complex multi-story or multi-room installations increase total labor hours .
- Permits and Site Preparation: Permit fees can range from $50 to $500, and additional costs may arise from wall or floor restoration after cable installation .
- Equipment: ONT/ONU modems, routers, switches, and mounting hardware are often included in the total installation cost, but confirm with the installer .
