

Installation of complete electrical distribution boxes in Malta

Article Overview

Installing electrical distribution boxes in Malta requires compliance with national regulations and must be carried out by authorized electrical contractors.

Regulatory Requirements

In Malta, all electrical installations, including distribution boxes, must comply with the Electrical Installations Regulations and their amendments, such as the 2020 and 2024 updates . These regulations ensure safety, proper connection to the electricity distribution system, and adherence to anti-islanding and backup operation standards for generators. Installations must be inspected and certified by authorized personnel to meet legal and safety requirements.

Authorized Installers

Only licensed electrical contractors with the appropriate authorization can install, alter, or extend electrical distribution systems. For example, holders of Authorisation B can work on three-phase installations rated 300 Amps or more, but certification must be done according to the regulator's guidelines . Contractors are vetted by the Technical Committee and must maintain compliance with fees and documentation to retain authorization.
