

Power distribution box near Bahrain

Article Overview

Power distribution boxes in Bahrain are typically located in substations, building load centers, and construction sites, serving as the interface between the national grid and end-user electrical systems.

Overview of Bahrain's Electrical Distribution

Bahrain's electricity network is managed by the Electricity and Water Authority (EWA), which oversees the design, construction, operation, and maintenance of the network to ensure reliable electricity delivery . Electricity is generated by independent power producers and transmitted through high-voltage lines to primary substations. From there, it is stepped down and distributed via secondary substations and distribution transformers to residential, commercial, and industrial areas .

Location of Power Distribution Boxes

- Residential and Commercial Buildings
- Distribution boxes, also known as main distribution boards (MDBs) or sub-distribution panels (SDBs), are installed inside buildings, often in utility rooms, basements, or dedicated electrical closets.
- These boxes receive electricity from the local transformer and distribute it to various circuits within the building, protecting equipment with circuit breakers and protective devices .
- Construction Sites
- Temporary distribution boxes are used to supply power to construction equipment, lighting, and site offices. These are often wall-mounted or portable units and are co...
