

Recommended Home Spectrum Splitter Brands

Article Overview

Top home spectrum splitter brands include GE, BAMF, TKCHAX, Holland, Antronix, and CommScope, offering reliable signal distribution for TV and internet.

Key Recommended Brands and Models

1. GE Digital Splitters GE offers 2-way and 3-way coaxial splitters with 2.5 GHz frequency support, gold-plated connectors, and minimal signal loss (~3.5 dB per port). These splitters are widely available, durable, and compatible with HD TV, 4K streaming, and MoCA networks, making them ideal for standard home setups . 2. BAMF Splitters BAMF 2-way and 4-way splitters are MoCA-compatible and support frequencies up to 2300 MHz. They feature zinc-cast housings, low signal attenuation, and are suitable for bridging internet connections between rooms using existing coaxial cabling . 3. TKCHAX Splitters TKCHAX splitters are designed for analog, digital, and MoCA networks, with nickel-plated zinc die-cast housing and power-pass enabled ports. They support RG6 and RG59 cables and provide excellent return loss and port isolation for clean signal distribution . 4. Holland GHS-PRO-M Series These are professional-grade splitters with nickel-plated zinc housing, excellent corrosion resistance, and consistent return loss. They are ideal for high-bandwidth cable internet or MoCA networks, ensuring minimal interference and reliable performance in damp or outdoor environments . 5. Antronix MMC1000 Series Antronix splitters are engineered for MoCA technology, featuring ferrite cores to reduce signal interference. They are durable and maintain a stable signal-to-noise ratio, suitable for complex home networks with multiple devices competing for bandwidth . 6. CommScope SV-...
